Salvation Army

287 Handy St. New Brunswick, NJ 08901

(On the corner of Handy St and Joyce Kilmer St)

Among its many community services is the Salvation Army's state-licensed After School Program for children aged 6 - 13 years old - running 5 days a week from 3:00 - 6:00.

The children are welcomed as they arrive from their various local schools, are helped with their homework, fed a nutritious meal provided by the Food Bank of New Jersey, then enjoy a range of enrichment activities including crafts, board games, science and math activities, and cooking. The children come predominantly from at-risk neighborhoods and English is the second language of most - their first language being Spanish. Helping them complete homework assignments is vital to their ability to keep up at school. A reading tutoring program is also offered 2 days a week, Tuesday and Thursdays at 3:30 - 5:30pm for 6 children, to the struggling readers.

Volunteers will be doing other literacy activities such as reading a story to the kids, buddy reading, playing word games, etc.

The state requires any volunteer working with children to have a background check and to be fingerprinted. There would be no cost to the volunteer for either of these. In addition, The Salvation Army runs its own background check - also at no cost to the volunteer. The community partner will supply the volunteer with the related paperwork.
